

Spray Foam Solutions

Putting hope back into families, restoring dignity, and providing a safe and healthy home are but a few of the miracles worked by Habitat for Humanity. E:zero has joined in the current Hubbard Street project from the Middlesex, Connecticut branch of Habitat for Humanity. E:zero will be providing the Hubbard Street home with its E:2000 closed-cell spray foam insulation to help transform this once dilapidated home from its old self into a vibrant, safe, and healthy home for Robin and 10 year old daughter Shannon.

By providing this house with the E:2000 closed-cell foam insulation, E:zero will be contributing to a healthy environment both through our emissions reducing insulation and through our support of a happy, safe, and healthy family. This spray foam insulation project will consist of an aggressive and thorough renovation. The Hubbard Street home is an old house with no insulation whatsoever. The insulation from E:zero will be applied to all of the stud walls, both interior and exterior, and the entire attic, creating a full building envelope seal. Once the house has been fully insulated, new owners Robin and Shannon will not only see energy savings of 50% or more, they will also have a quieter and healthier home for the entire life of the house.

New homeowners Robin and her daughter Shannon prepare to cut the ribbon and launch their remodeling of their new home.

E:zero is continually working to provide products and solutions to help impact the environment in a more positive direction, as well as working with communities and groups like Habit for Humanity to do the same for the many needy families and communities throughout the country. To learn more about E:zero and our spray foam insulation products please visit our website at www.ezerosolutions.com or call us at 1-877-300-3150.

About E:zero

E:zero, Inc. is dedicated to providing solutions which will ultimately put us on a path to zero carbon emissions. Carbon emissions are widely considered a serious threat to our planet's health as they cause climate and weather changes with potentially dire consequences. Millions of concerned citizens want to contribute to a solution by making the right choices. The right choices involve a shift toward a post-carbon society. Obviously, we are only at the beginning of a long development.

E:zero is expending extraordinary effort on identifying and commercializing only products which serve a dual purpose: saving money while helping the environment.
